

MINE SALTING.

Mine salting has been practiced so frequently in Colorado that smelters and miners are extremely careful to whom they sell rich ore, lest it be put to improper uses. Hence it is a matter of some difficulty to obtain the salt.

This was rather ingeniously overcome some years ago in Leadville. A salter wanted some ore from Robert E. Lee mine, at that time the richest in the camp. He obtained employment as a laborer, and every day after he had eaten his dinner in one of the drifts, he would fill his tin bucket with ore. In a short time he had the necessary quantity. Some miners who noticed the trick employed it to steal ore and were getting rich when the whole story came to light and they came to grief.

It is a singular fact that not only have poor mines been salted with rich ore, but rich have been very frequently salted with poor. The circumstances under which such an apparent paradox would take place are these:

Explorations are being made in some part of a mine and a vein of very rich mineral is suddenly uncovered. If the Superintendent has salt and darkness in his soul he is very apt to take a pick dig out a little of the ore, and fill the cavity with low grade stuff from some other part of the mine. Then he makes a discouraging report, apparently verified by facts, and in due course of time proposes to lease the property for a song. If he is successful, the vein is not long in being rediscovered. This trick has been played time and again all over the State, and in instances the salter has gone so far as to "accidentally" blow up the tunnel in which a rich find was made. Perhaps some poor wretch of a miner would be caught in the awful subterranean crash that shook the bowels of the earth and buried forever beneath tons of rocky debris, but such an episode as that never disturbs the even tenor of a true seller's way.—Denver Corr. N. Y. Sun.

She Feels Better Now.

Mrs. Clarinda Yates, an aged colored widow, was in great "flatteration," and all on account of dreaming three nights in succession that on April 15th a huge tidal wave would move in through the Golden Gate and overwhelm Oakland, San Francisco and other Bay towns. So great an impression had this triple dream made on the old "mammy's" mind that she packed up and went to Nevada City to reside. No argument could convince her otherwise than that Oakland was doomed. She has recently returned to Oakland, and dreams no more.

The Inglewood Star.

The APPEAL is in receipt of the Inglewood Star, a new paper published in the growing city of Inglewood, by Col. H. G. Shaw, late of the Enterprise.

It is a fine, 28-column paper, of neat typographical appearance, devoted to the interests of the new town of Inglewood, a city about nine miles from Los Angeles. The place appears to have all the good things of the semi-tropic belt without its malaria, as it is near the ocean and more elevated than most of the Southern California towns.

With so stout an exponent of its interests the city ought to hold its own in the race for population.

—D. F. Langford of Lodi, Cal., was convicted in the Justice's Court Tuesday, of maintaining a dam across the Mokelumne river near Lancha Plana, Amador county, unprovided with fish ladders, and was fined $250 or 100 days in jail.

If a few more of his stripes were dealt with in this way the men who ignore the fish laws would soon get a little sense knocked into them.

—Sam Jones is telling the people down in Georgia that if they "don't divide the Democratic party pretty soon the devil will get the whole lump." Mr. Jones is rapidly developing the attributes for a great and far-seeing statesman.

The powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y. Jy30.1v
